a scale sufficiently extensive for their interest,

and to do justice to so valuable a situation.

We will also Sell or Rent,

that valuable and convenient Brick Store-

House and Wharf we at present occupy, being calculated for a store and counting room upon the first floor, and for a family upon the se-

the whole building, together with a brick kitchen adjoining. This stand has probably been equal to any in Virginia for the sale of both Dry Goods and Groceries; and if the present growing crops of grain should be realized equal to its present appearances,

there is no doubt but this stand will be equal to former times, as we propose to keep up a constant cash market for wheat, and will probably buy 70 to 80,000 bushels.

THE DAY.

By DAVID DEVIOUS, Esq.,
NO. IV.

Of most disastrous chances,
Of moving accidents by flood and field;
Of half-breadth scapes—
It was my hint to speak,

OTHELLO.

I remember to have read in tales of knight-errantry of certain ill-starred champions, condemned from their birth by some wily magician to a continual succession of misadventures. My admiration has been frequently excited by similar personages who have come within my own observation, every day of whose lives has been marked, by their own account, with some unprecedented accident or exploit; whose conversation is a kind of reece-show, in which numberless wonderful scenes and extraordinary adventures are continually exhibited to surprise us, and whom some malicious enchanter appears to have spell-bound to lead unto dilemmas to which the knight of La Mancha's battle with the windmill, or Falstaff's encounter with the twelve men in Kendall-green, are mere pigmies of wonders.

My friend Dick Scapewell, although he has never been fifty miles from home, has, I verily believe, seen more surprising sights, and encountered more "moving accidents by flood and field," than any man since the days of Othello. Besides a number of standing adventures which have been regularly served up to me every time I have visited him, every step which he takes from home furnishes Dick with a new budget of wonders. Does he ride half a dozen miles for an airing? the very elements conspire to defeat his intention. He is either half-drowned in a storm, carried away by the sudden flooding of the streams, or betrayed by the darkness of the night to the bottom of a ditch. Every hedge is peopled with footpads, and every common converted into a Hounslow Heath, and it is matter of wonder to every one but himself, that he has survived his numberless accidents and encounters, and the consequent contusions, wounds and dislocations.

But the most surprising and entertaining persons of this sort are the travellers to foreign parts, who, from their more extensive range of adventure, are enabled to bestow a greater variety and novelty of embellishment upon their relations. One of these living repositories of wonders, when he is in the "very tempest and whirlwind" of his descriptions, resembles very much the dauntless knight or cavalier of yore, bestriding some enchanted beast that whirls him with prodigious velocity through hyzans and dragons, over hills, vales, and precipices, till we should become absolutely dizzy with the fear of his breaking his neck, did we not advert to that fortunate and laudable rule which, on such occasions, undeviatingly prescribes success to both species of adventurers.

There are three causes which induced the whole of this class of personages to this sort of exhibition: the one, an extreme inclination to engage; the second, a natural tendency to magnify, and a firm belief of the importance of whatever appertains to self; the other is an excessive desire to encrease our consideration in the eyes of others; of which motives, the one is so generous and disinterested, and the two last so natural that, as it would seem, the whole corps of travellers and other makers of wonders have considered them a fair apology for fibbing and lying with impunity. I do not know, however, whether the liberal generosity with which reason, propriety and possibility are sacrificed to the first of these, be repaid with that grateful which an offering so great would appear to merit. When Mr. Marvel sits down to amuse me with his adventures on Mont Blanc, in the crater of Etna, or the gallery of the Fhuilleries, though I know very well that his peregrinations have been confined to the parlours of a few European custom-houses, the entertainment I might derive from his ingenious Romances is entirely overwhelmed in my disgust at his enormous violations of truth.

But there is another species of these characters, who, without having in view either their own importance or the amusement of others, are equally vast in their conceptions, and miraculous in their relations. Such appear to be influenced by that law of optics which increases the apparent magnitude of an object in proportion to its proximity to one's self, and according to which the sun may be excluded from the view by the near interposition of a moon. They are in the predicament of a man whose ideas derived from sight have never been corrected by the touch, who will mistake a fly for a crow, and a molehill for a mountain. They appear to be surrounded by such an atmosphere of self-admiration, that they discern through it no object relating only to others, while those connected with themselves are distorted by it into an unnatural magnitude. Hence they describe as monsters what are seen by others as mere every day objects, and incur the blame of exaggeration, when they speak what they implicitly believe to be true.

It is with such palliating considerations as these that I complacently listen to narratives from honest Jack Bouncer of hair-breadth scapes and direful accidents; of expeditions in which rain, wind and thunder, and all the elements had combined their vengeful fury to overwhelm him, and then hear them described by another as ordinary occurrences, or journey, which like most others had been only diversified by fair and foul weather, by clouds and sunshine, by wind and calm. With equal allowance I can sit by the fire with my old friend Rigmorole, and listen to tales "of woeeful ages long ago betid," of the feats of his boyhood, or his adventures in the last Indian war; and enjoy my fifth pipe while, with honest partiality and a species of egotism akin to that I mentioned, just now, he entertains me with anecdotes of his extraordinary son Bob, or the merits of his old grey stud.

But for my ancient friend as well as all other old gentlemen who, like Ossian's old heroes, are apt to slide into the track of long stories of the "dettls of days of other years," there is another very natural apology. The frolics, exploits and adventures of youth continually recur to the memory of the old with an indefinable charm which affects not only remembrance but imagination, and the agreeable visions of the last thus brought out and associated with these pleasing recollections insensibly acquire an equal share of belief and seeming reality. The embellishments, therefore, which are usually bestowed on the narratives of old age have what is termed in law "the right of prescription" to belief, a right which in the courts is equally venerable and powerful. And upon the whole I do not know, after these reflections on the character of the lovers of the marvellous, of the class of Scapewell, Marvel and Bouncer as well as Mr. Rigmorole, whether they are not all very excusable, innocent and entertaining personages; and I have it partly in contemplation to recommend to my friend Meddle, who, I find is engaged in several very useful schemes of reform in the fashionable world, such an equal distribution of the most noted inventions of fables and long stories of the day as will be most conducive to its edification; not forgetting to recommend in particular to his provident attention the supplying of two or more of these "useful articles to every rout, aquete or conversation party, presuming that they will prove a sensible relief to that extensive class of persons whose only discoverable reason for opening their own mouths in company is that prescriptive rule, "one must say something."

Mr. Devious;

Though you have remarked, I perceive, on the paucity of ideas which is at present an epidemic disease among the votaries of fiction, you have neglected to do them justice in another particular: you must allow if their ideas are few, their mode of expressing them at least are sufficiently novel. Indeed the improvements which are daily tacked to our vernacular tongue must be a subject of infinite pleasure to the lovers of the antiquarianism with which some of the poets of the day have deluged the public, who on this account look forward with satisfaction to the speedy introduction of every author of the last century.

The affected introduction of French words and the barbarous pronunciation of our own are heresies quite flagrant enough; however, lover of Addison, Goldsmith and pure English must revolt from these barbarous counterfeits of the fashionable vulgar which are introduced as the real coin of pure Anglicism. You shall hear one of this herd bring forth for English and; (to use one of their own terms) with entire inconsideration, such words as amicability, illy and ad-quability; this one guesses (mark his modesty)—he guesses, that he has made a lengthy visit, and is sorry that he is necessitated to depart previous to a certain house, but fancies (that is, expects) that it will be in his power to return; another murders in cold blood the innocent term forgets, and disremember starts up from its ashes;—and a third, to the confusion of plodding, distinguishes between active and neuter verbs, informs that he grows asparagus in his own garden. I was astonished the other day, when speaking of a very talkative man, to hear my friend reply that he really was very conversant; and equally so to learn from him, never having heard of such petty traffic, that he was about to dispose of a small tract of land.

If we progress at this rate, Mr. Devious, our language will soon rival in copiousness all that we know of the Greek, or are told of the Sanscrit.

ANGELICUS.

FRENCH PAPERS.

Report of the minister of General Police to the Emperor.

PARIS, April 27.

"I inform your majesty that the sieur Barthemy, officer of the staff attached to prince Ferdinand, and commandant of the castle of Valancy, had acquainted me with the introduction into that castle of a biton de Kolli, calling himself minister of England to prince Ferdinand, who having been brought to my office, I transmit to your majesty the following letters announcing his arrest. Kolli is a prisoner in the castle of Vincennes, and I wait the orders of your majesty upon the affair. The diamonds and other effects of which he was the bearer, are deposited at the office of general police.

(Signed)

FOUCHE."

No. 1. Is a letter to the minister of general police, by M. Barthemy, announcing Kolli's arrest, and his being forwarded to Paris.

No. 2. Is a letter from prince Ferdinand to Mr. Barthemy, governor of the castle of Valancy, dated April 6, appraising him of the conduct of Kolli.

No. 3. Is a copy of Kolli's examination at the office of general police.

No. 4. Is a letter from Charles IV addressed to the king of England in 1802, announcing the marriage of the prince of Asturias. It was given to Kolli, with a marginal note by the marquis Wellesley, to be used as a credential to prince Ferdinand. On the back of the letter the following was written in the hand of marquis Wellesley: "The undersigned principal secretary of state of his Britannic majesty for the foreign department, declares, that this letter is truly the same that his Catholic majesty Charles IV. addressed to his Britannic majesty George III. on occasion of the marriage of the prince of Asturias, now king Ferdinand VII. This authentic document is confided to the persons who will have the honor of laying it before his Catholic majesty Ferdinand VII. to verify their mission.

WELLESLEY."

Downing Street,
Feb. 26, 1810.

Letter from King George III. signed in his own hand, to Prince Ferdinand, entrusted to Kolli.

SIR—MY BROTHER—

I have long wished for an opportunity to transmit to your majesty a letter signed in my own hand expressing the lively interest and profound respect I have felt since your majesty has been separated from your kingdom and loyal subjects. Notwithstanding the violence and cruelty with which the usurper of the throne of Spain overthrew the Spanish nation, it must prove a great consolation to your majesty to learn, that your people preserve their loyalty and attachment to the person of their lawful king, and that Spain makes continual efforts to uphold your majesty's rights, and to re-establish the independence of the monarchy. The resources of my kingdom, my fleets & armies, shall be employed to assist your majesty's subjects in this great cause, and my ally the prince regent of Portugal, has also contributed to it with all the zeal and perseverance of a faithful friend.

To your majesty's faithful subjects, as well as your allies, your presence only is wanted in Spain, where it would inspire a new energy.

I therefore entreat your majesty with all the frankness of the alliance and friendship which bind me to your majesty's interests, to consider of the most prudent and effectual means of escaping from the indignities you experience, and of showing yourself among a people who are unanimous in their wishes for your majesty's happiness and glory.

I annex to this letter a copy of the credentials which my minister in Spain is to present to the central junta that governs there in the name and by the authority of your majesty.

I entreat your majesty to feel assured of my sincere friendship, and of the true attachment which

I am, sir, my brother,
Your worthy brother,

(Signed)

GEORGE R.

(Countersigned)

WELLESLEY.

AT THE QUEEN'S PALACE,
Jan. 20, 1810.

No. 5. Is a letter from George III. to prince Ferdinand, being a copy of the full powers granted to Henry Wellesley.

No. 7. This is a letter from M. de Barthemy, giving a description of the festivities of the castle of Valancy, on the 1st of April, in honor of the emperor's marriage, upon which occasion the Spanish princes are represented as having studiously embraced every opportunity of manifesting their joy at the event. They attended the chapel at the castle, and at the conclusion of the Te Deum, prince Ferdinand was the first to exclaim, "Long live the emperor; long live the empress; long live the empress." The toasts after dinner were, by prince Ferdinand—"Our august sovereigns Napoleon the great, and Maria Louisa, his august spouse." By prince Charles, "the two imperial and royal families of France and Austria." By prince Anthony, "the happy union of Napoleon the great, and Maria Louisa." M. D'Amazez at the table of the officers of their household, gave, "Napoleon the great, and Maria Louisa, the glory and delight of France and Germany; may divine providence grant them a long and happy life." The castle and parks were illuminated in the evening with between 8 and 9000 lamps.

No. 8. Is a copy of a letter addressed to M. Barthemy by prince Ferdinand, acquainting him with his wish to become the adopted son of his majesty.

SATURDAY, JUNE 30.

A n officer in our "Home Department" has been a little censured for devoting a part of the Sabbath to the execution of an official duty—this may have been morally wrong—but from the article annexed, (taken from the N. Y. Com. Advertiser) it appears that he is countenanced by high authority.

"By the ninth section of an act regulating the Post-Office establishment, it is made the duty of the Post Masters to deliver letters on Sunday. The Post-Master at Philadelphia has received instructions from the general Post Office, to open his office for one hour on that day.

"We are sorry that Congress should have thought it expedient to have passed a law which has a tendency to demoralize society, and turn the Lord's Day, set apart by our Saviour, for religious worship, into a day of bustle and confusion. We ought to expect better things of even Jeffersonian rulers."

The following concluding sentence of an article in the National Intelligencer, is intended perhaps as a caution:

"When the fact of the violent sale of our property could no longer be doubted; when it was proclaimed, from French authority, that all American vessels, and their cargoes, which proceeded to the ports of the continent of Europe within French control, shall be seized and shipwrecked; when the recent advices from our minister at Paris are starting our merchants full in the face; such is the singular cupidity of the times, that millions worth of property has been sent thither by our traders, who, at the instant they are cursing Napoleon for his late conduct, are hastening to furnish him with fresh opportunities for additional rapacity."

We venture to say that gen. Armstrong has committed an unpardonable offence, in the eyes of the democratic party, and that he will soon be as bitterly denounced for his manly language at the court of the Thulleries, as Mr. Pinckney has been for his civility at the court of St. James's. He tells the French governor in deprecating but explicit terms, that their pretence of a precedent for their treatment of us, in the conduct of Great Britain, is an imposture and cannot be admitted. "By this language Mr. Armstrong had deprived the French faction of that apology for France, which they always urged, but which they must now give up, or renounce the general." He has stated the truth—he has taken federal ground.—Boston Rep.

The Baltimore Whig quotes Swift:—"When a man avers that he belongs to no party, he is certainly of a party of which he is ashamed." Have not Mr. Gerry and J. Q. Adams avowed that they were of no party? Yet they are certainly democrats, but Swift has given the reason of their denial.—Ibid.

"The infamous Orders in Council" is in every democrat's mouth. We beg to know what vessels have been condemned by the operations of those orders; at the same time it is a fact, that it would require several columns in a newspaper, to contain merely the names of the vessels seized and condemned by Bonaparte, in consequence of his decrees. A list equally large, perhaps, might be produced, if justice were done, of American vessels convoyed and protected against the depredations of Bonaparte and his allies, by British cruisers.—Ibid.

Captain Graves, arrived at Boston, from Naples (saved in the Margaret's long-boat) informs, that in the general wreck of American property, our consul's (Hammat's) did not remain secure, but that his private property was forcibly seized—Some American sailors applied to consul Hammat for assistance, when he told them, he was himself penniless: He was afterwards enabled to afford them some assistance.

A prolific Wedding.—In adopting the maxim "that it is not good for man to be alone," Bonaparte has determined not only to set the example of marrying, but to accompany it with such arguments as cannot fail, in a country so famed for gallantry as France, to make it followed. We may presume also, that although the emperor's first marriage produced no issue, this last will add somewhat to the number of his subjects. Among the regulations to be observed in consequence of the nuptials of this unparalleled character, we find the following:

"Besides the six thousand for which are to be given to 6000 young women, who are to be married to 6000 soldiers, in honor of the imperial nuptials, a pardon has been granted to deserters from the army and navy, and all persons imprisoned for certain slight state offences who are detained in prison for the payment of their fines and expence, are discharged."

HORRIBLE MASSACRE.

The following is taken from a London paper. Unhappy Europe! literally wallowing in blood, what a destiny is yours?

The following is an extract of a private letter from Abo, the capital of Finland, under date the 25th ult.—"It is with the deepest regret that I communicate to you an account of the perpetration of atrocities scarcely exceeded by the memorable massacre on St. Bartholomew's day at Paris, by the Russian troops on the inhabitants of this ill-fated country. 'In violation of an express stipulation in the treaty for the transfer of Finland to Russia, a certain portion of the inhabitants were ordered to be drafted or rather impressed into the emperor's service. The despotic mandate was in general obeyed, and considerable levies were procured, before their destination was known to be the shores of the Euxine, to fight against the Turks. In the province of Savolax the alarm became general; and the people conceiving they were exempt from service for a limited time, ventured to remonstrate against what they considered as an infraction of the treaty. Count Tolesky, the governor of Finland, to whom the appeal was made in the most respectful and submissive terms, invited the inhabitants, by proclamation, to repair on Sunday last, the fourth of May, to their respective churches, in order to obtain a redress of grievances. This artifice had the desired effect. The inhabitants, who are widely scattered, and difficult to be got at in detail, were collected in a focus; and, while in anxious expectation of the proffered act of grace, and unconscious of the impending danger, they were suddenly surrounded by bands of soldiers, who, regardless of the sanctity of the place, and deaf to the voice of humanity, dragged the flower of the young men from the altars of their God, from the bosom of their parents, and the enjoyment of all that was most dear to them in life; & moreover butchered, without any distinction of age, sex or condition, those that attempted by intercession or force to soften the hearts or avert the deadly weapons of their remorseless assassins. In the parishes where those atrocities were perpetrated, no less than 700 unoffending and defenceless individuals have fallen victims to the relentless fury of those human form."

From a Swedish paper.

SENTIMENTAL ANECDOTE.

A circumstance has recently taken place at Fahlun, the capital of Delectaria in Sweden, which might figure with advantage in a novel. In working to establish a new communication between two shafts of a mine, the body of a miner was discovered in a state of perfect preservation, and impregnated with vitriolic water. The body was quite soft, but hardened on being exposed to the air. No one could identify the individual, it was only recollected that the accident by which he had been thus buried in the bosom of the earth had taken place 30 years ago. All enquiries as to the name of the sufferer had already ceased, when a decrepit old woman leaning on crutches, slowly advanced towards the corpse, and knew it to be that of a young man to whom she had been promised in marriage half a century ago. She threw herself on the corpse, which had all the appearance of a bronze statue, bathed it with her tears, and fainted with joy at having once more beheld the object of her affection on this side of the grave. It is easier to conceive than to trace the singular contrast afforded by that couple; the one buried fifty years ago, still answering all the appearances of youth, while the other, weighed down by age, evinced all the fervency of youthful love.

HATTON GARDEN.

Yesterday a chaste virgin, considerably advanced in the vale of years, was charged before the magistrates of this office with wilfully and maliciously beating a male-diplomat, alias a man, on the head with a certain utensil, not commonly used as a weapon of defence. The complainant stated, that by misadventure he had entered the chamber of the accused, when she rushed on him with the fury of a sphinx, and not only destroyed his best wig, by the contents of the utensil, but injured the pericranium which that princely scalp covered. The defendant alleged in violation of her duties, that the complainant had threatened her immaculate virtue, and (like Virginia or Lucretia) preferred death to dishonor. The magistrate considered the gay gallant to have been rather tidely handled; but, under all the circumstances of the case, discharged the lady, with advice not to use her weapon in future with so much dexterity.

Married, on Thursday last, at Chestnut-Hill, Fairfax county, by the Rev. Dr. Muir, the Rev. Francis Barclay, to Miss Helen Haley Clark Brown, daughter of the late Dr. William Brown.

IN COMMON COUNCIL.

June 28, 1810.

Ordered, That the superintendent of police do proceed to build a wooden bridge over Cameron street, at the intersection of Pitt-street, and that a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, be appropriated for that purpose out of the funds of the 2d and 3d wards in equal proportion.

The following bill was read the third time:

A Bill concerning Hucksters, &c. others. Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the common council of Alexandria, That from & after the passing of this act, no huckster or other person shall be subject to any fine or penalty for selling on Sundays, during market hours, any provisions indispensably needful for sustenance the said day—and the mayor or is directed not to fine any huckster or other person for the above described vending and selling during the hours aforesaid.

Section 2d. And be it further enacted, That if any justice of the peace for the county of Alexandria, do or shall impose any fine or penalty for or on account of such vending or selling during the time heretofore mentioned, that the said mayor is hereby empowered and ordered to remit any and every such fine or fines which shall or may accrue to the use or benefit of the common council. And it is hereby ordered, That the superintendent of police and constables for the town of Alexandria, are directed to conform themselves in their respective duties to the provisions of this act.

On a motion that the said bill be read the second time, the yeas and nays were—Yeas—Messrs. Young, Sutton, Lawson, McKenzie, McKnight and Anderson. Nays—Messrs. Cohagan, Preston, Nevitt, Lee, Newton and Rhodes.

The president voting against the motion it was lost.

Ordered, That the petition upon the subject of Brock's pump, be referred to John Sutton and Thomas Preston, who are hereby instructed to report by bill or otherwise.

Ordered, That John Cohagan & Charles McKnight be a committee to enquire into the expediency of sinking a pump at the intersection of Fayette and Cammeron or Queen-street.

June 27.

Ten Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber on Saturday night the 17th Instant, a negro woman named WINNY—she is a small and black woman with a full eye. Had on when she went away a homespun linen petticoat and shift and lincey jacket, but took with her sundry other cloaths. It is probable she may change her name and call herself Mrs. Brown, as she has a husband in George-town or the city, who is a free man by the name of William Brown. The above reward will be paid for apprehending and securing said runaway so that I get her again, and reasonable charges if brought home.

HAMILTON'S ELIXIR FOR COUGHS

DEAR bought experience has taught thousands that oily and heated medicines, joined with strong opiates or sleepy drugs, repeated doses of which flatter and deceive the patient for the present, by procuring momentary ease; experience, I say, has taught thousands, that the common opiates and balsams, as they are called, finally aggravate every disorder of the breast and lungs, in half most distressing symptoms: that they relax the stomach and impair the digestion; inflame the whole system, increase the difficulty of breathing and excite fever. But the qualities of this valuable discovery are evidenced by perfectly opposite effects. A single trial will prove, that it restores the determination of the fluids to the surface of the body, and brings on the common healthful perspiration—that it dislodges and evacuates the tough viscid phlegm or mucus, strengthens the weakened vessels of the lungs, breathes the acrimonious humor which irritates them, and finally discharges it. Thus striking at the root of the disorder, the symptoms are of course effectually and permanently conquered; the reverse of common medicines, which weaken the constitution and give strength to the disorder for the sake of moderating for the present some of its painful effects.

To patients who have children afflicted with the whooping cough, this discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress, and in a short time entirely removes the most cruel disorder to which children are liable. The Elixir is so perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Selected Recommendations.

Being desirous to make public for the good of others, the excellent quality of Hamilton's Elixir, prepared by the late Mr. Lee, I have sent you the following account of the benefit I have received from it; which I hope will induce others to give it a trial. In consequence of a bruise on the breast received from a fall, my health grew bad, my breathing became very difficult, and frequently I have had suddenly to rise up in my bed with all the horrors of immediate suffocation. Add to these a constant pain in my breast, and a cough, a great loss of strength & flesh, and you may conceive that my symptoms evidently indicated an approaching consumption. The advice of a most eminent physician was resorted to, and afterwards a second was called in, but without giving me any relief. Another physician who knew me and the circumstances of my case, advised me to give Hamilton's Elixir a trial, saying he had used it in his practice and always found it to do much good. A bottle was procured from Mr. Birch's, and I found relief before I had taken half of it. I continued to use it & was soon strong to attend to business. On taking cold, some of my former symptoms return, but are always removed by a dose or two of the Elixir.

George Benner, jun.

no. 11. Budd street, Philadelphia.
Mrs. H. Lee, New York.

Mr. Abijah Henly, Bridge street, Baltimore, was cured by one bottle of Hamilton's Elixir, of a very complicated disorder, occasioned by a very severe cold caught several months ago. He breathed with the greatest difficulty, and was often thrown into weakening sweats when he attempted to walk any distance, and his voice would frequently fail in such a degree that he could only attempt to whisper. He has been upwards of six weeks without a return of his complaints; and desires to give his public testimony in favor of this invaluable medicine.

Itch Cured.

By once using Lee's Sovereign Ointment. The proprietor informs those persons and families who are suffering under this disease, against the infection of which no person is safe, that if this ointment is used at night on going to bed it never fails to perform a cure by the following morning, as thousands who have used it during the last ten years can testify. The peculiar excellencies of this infallible remedy for the itch, above every other, are the certainty of the cure by a single application; the ingredients being so innocent as to be applied with perfect safety to the most delicate infant; and its being not only free from any offensive smell, but equally agreeable with the pleasantest pomatum.

Hamilton's Grand Restorative.

When the inventor confidently recommends this and invaluable medicine for the speedy relief, and permanent cure of various complaints which result from disordered pleasures, juvenile indiscretions, residence in climates unfavorable to the constitution, the immoderate use of tea, frequent intoxication or any destructive intemperance, the unskillful or frequent use of mercury, the diseases peculiar to females at a certain period of life, bad layings in, &c.

HAMILTON'S CELEBRATED WORM DESTROYING LOZENGES.

Among the symptoms attending Worms are, disagreeable breath, especially in the morning—bad and corrupt gums—itching in the nose, and about the seat—convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes a privation of speech—irregular appetite; sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious—purging with slimy and fetid stools—vomiting—large and hard belly—pains and sickness at the stomach—pains in the head and thighs, with looseness of spirits—slow fever, with small and irregular pulse—a dry cough—excessive thirst—sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and washed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms, should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

Valuable Farm for Sale.

I WILL sell the TRACT OF LAND on which I resided the last year, called "Buzard's Island," lying on Patuxent river, in Calvert county and nearly opposite to Benedict; containing by estimation seven hundred three and one quarter acres of as fertile land as can be found in the state of Maryland, one third of which is in wood and very heavily timbered, and as well watered for the convenience of stock as any tract of its size in the state.

The arable part of this plantation is level, and most of it covered with oyster-shells and is divided into three fields each of which will produce two hundred barrels of corn, with a reserve of prime Tobacco land sufficient to grow fifty hogsheads of Tobacco annually, and with very little labor more meadow may be reclaimed than will be found sufficient. No land can be better adapted to the growth of corn, tobacco and wheat, and few plantations hold out stronger inducements to stimulate an industrious man. It binds for a considerable distance on the river and lies nearly in a square.

Fish, oysters and wild fowl, are to be had at all times: Stock of every description, particularly sheep, thrives and improves wonderfully when removed to this land: a convincing proof of the nutritious quality of the grass, which it produces in great abundance. The improvements are sufficient to accommodate a small family. A more particular description is not necessary, as a purchaser will naturally view the premises. The above estate is now under a tenement of one thousand dollars per annum. Terms accommodating, and made known by application to Walter W. Harwood, merchant, Upper Marlboro' Prince George County, or to the subscriber now in Alexandria.

Richard W. Harwood.
